

Poet and Artist Jake Pilsbury

Jake is a self-taught aspiring artist who is enrolled in the entrepreneur program at WCCC. Jake is also taking his second philosophy class with MIT. He is designing logos and graphics for the MIT Prison Education Initiative group. Jake is a creative soul who enjoys anything to express that creativity. Music, poetry, drawing, tattooing, or creating custom projects are some of his favorite things to do. Jake hopes to own his own tattoo shop one day, as well as becoming a freelance graphic designer. Jake has a passion for art because it gives him an opportunity to express himself through a canvas. He hopes his passion inspires other artists to pursue their artistic dreams someday.

Timeless Battles...

This magnificent offering within the cosmos I call life holds such extraordinary splendor.

I am one of the cherished granules of sand within this fragile hourglass of life and its precious moments within determine my destiny.

Time is such a valued Gem that shimmers within the universe.

It often evaporates at the speed of light; I call it the speed of life.

The tricky demons within this journey attempt to rob us of our time and devour the fatigued souls of the cowardice.

I rise up dignified as an indestructible soldier within this grueling battle of life.

I am worthy of a blissful existence inside this stratosphere, misery has made many attempts to snatch my divine spirit.

However, I strive to become a master to withstand these vile schemes laid upon me

Affliction can no longer pierce my Steele plated spirit
I have conquered my tribulations and transformed them into aspirations.

I breathe confidence and bleed style, precious moments become priceless within this journey.

My pock marked paws clutch the paints or my soul's sorrow.

These utensils craft such vivid masterpieces on this easel of life.

*The mysterious misery inspires these colorful

Which remains unseen to the eye of the admirer.

*Can something so glorious be shaped by an abundance of gloom.
Preferably so.....*

For despair holds such raw emotional power

Art is the disguise which conceals my crestfallen cause.

*I hold a remarkable aptitude for the alluring pieces
I produce with a creative existence within*

Although the outward appearance holds immense beauty the motivations inside carry extensive misery.

Art is the oil and sorrow the gasoline that keeps my soul's generator running smoothly.

Read about seven extraordinary women below ...

Shirley Chisholm (1924-2005)

"I want to be remembered as a woman who dared to be a catalyst of change."

"Shirley Anita St. Hill Chisholm was the first African American woman in Congress (1968) and the first woman and African American to seek the nomination for president of the United States from one of the two major political parties (1972). Her motto and title of her autobiography—Unbossed and Unbought—illustrates her outspoken advocacy for women and minorities during her seven terms in the U.S. House of Representatives.

Discrimination followed Chisholm's quest for the 1972 Democratic Party presidential nomination. She was blocked from participating in televised primary debates, and after taking legal action, was permitted to make just one speech. Still, students, women, and minorities followed the "Chisholm Trail." She entered 12 primaries and garnered 152 of the delegates' votes (10% of the total) ...

Chisholm retired from Congress in 1983. She taught at Mount Holyoke College and co-founded the National Political Congress of Black Women" (Michals, 2015, <https://www.womenshistory.org/education-resources/biographies/shirley-chisholm>).

Honoring Kekehtahsuwiw

"We are matriarchal people. That is who we have been for thousands of years. The fact that women's role has been diminished over the last 500 years is not our way ... we need to ... respect our women, believe in our women, and take care of our women. We are the ones who have been entrusted as givers of life ... Remember that we are matriarchal people."

"Women are still the leading force ... it's set in our DNA. Women were the givers of life, we nurtured the children, and today, we're really still pushing to make our people complete again. We're the caregivers – if there's going to be healing, we're the ones to do it ... We've been given a very special gift ... with community members voicing concerns, I take a look around, and I always see more women."

Candy Torres, NASA Engineer

"In 1984, Torres moved to Houston to work on software for the Space Shuttle flight controllers ... Her projects included creating a long-term space habitation database and other computerization projects. Torres had no illusions about what she achieved.

'I'd got to Building 1 where I had my office, and on the door was a metal [plaque] with the NASA logo engraved on it ... I would caress it ... because I knew what it had taken for me to get there ...' Torres ... became a flight controller for the International Space Station, the most ambitious ... multinational effort in history ...

(<http://usldhrecovery.uh.edu/exhibits/show/candytorrestech/orican/page4>)."

"Torres, the 57-year-old daughter of Puerto Rican immigrants ... studied astrophysics at Rutgers, worked on experimental satellite research at Princeton and developed next-generation software for the shuttle program.

She came of age with ... the original "Star Trek" television series. 'I thought about the future a lot ... because I recognized that the present and the past weren't very happy places for people ... to me, the future was always going to be better ... as a Puerto Rican, I really connected with the diversity of the Enterprise's crew, that vision of a utopian, multi-ethnic future" (<http://edition.cnn.com/2011/IREPORT/07/06/torres.shuttle.index.html>).

Cecilia Chung Transgender Rights Activist

"Celia Chung has tirelessly advocated for transgender rights for more than 20 years, first in San Francisco, and later, nationwide. As an Asian transgender woman living with HIV, she's spent her life fighting to end discrimination, stigma and violence across marginalized communities, first as the former chair of the San Francisco Human Rights Commission and then on the Presidential Advisory Council on HIV/AIDS.

'When I was coming into the movement, transgender people were dying left and right – not just because of violence, but because of what we later found out was HIV ... We weren't just fighting for our rights we were fighting for our lives by demanding treatment and more research. We were also demanding to be seen as human beings.'"

"Still fighting today, Chung works at the Transgender Law Center and directs Positively Trans, a project that uses research, policy advocacy and narrative to address the systematic inequalities that lead to poor health and high rates of HIV/AIDS in the transgender community" (https://www.huffpost.com/entry/asian-americans-womens-history-month\_5c8699b9e4b0d936162a9eac).

Mary Walker (1832-1919)

"The only woman to ever be awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor was best known during her life as a feminist, abolitionist, surgeon ... and the woman who insisted on wearing pants! Mary Edwards Walker was one of America's first female doctors, and eschewed the heavy dresses expected of women, writing that 'The greatest sorrows from which women suffer to-day are those physical, moral, and mental ones, that are caused by their unhygienic manner of dressing!' Instead, her preferred garb was trousers under a knee-length jacket or dress.

When the Civil War broke out, she quickly volunteered to provide medical care for the Union army. At first, she was only permitted to work as a nurse, but by 1863 she was officially contracted as a civilian surgeon — one who frequently crossed battle lines to assist the wounded, and who regularly treated civilians. She was captured by Confederate forces in 1864 and accused of being a spy, but later was freed as part of a prisoner exchange.

President Andrew Johnson awarded her with the Medal of Honor in 1865. In her later life, she went on to argue for women's suffrage -- and for a cause close to her heart, dress reform" (<https://www.amightygirl.com/blog?p=11974>).

Ann Curry, American Journalist

Ann Curry has been a reporter for more than 30 years, focusing on human suffering in war zones and natural disasters. She has reported from the wars in Kosovo, Iraq, Syria, Lebanon, Israel, Afghanistan, Darfur, Congo, and the Central African Republic, and covered numerous disasters, including the Indian Ocean tsunami of 2004 and the earthquake in Haiti, 2010; her Twitter appeal is credited for helping speed the arrival of humanitarian planes.

Curry became the national and international correspondent-anchor for NBC News and the anchor at large for the Today Show after serving as the anchor for Dateline NBC. She left NBC and founded her own multi-platform media startup and continues to provide major news interview on network television.

Ann Curry was born in Guam to a Japanese mother and American father of Irish and German descent who served in the U.S. Navy. She lived in Japan as a child and completed a BA in Journalism from the University of Oregon in 1978. Starting as an intern, she became the first female reporter at KTVL and moved to NBC where she became an anchor. She moved on to Los Angeles and received two Emmy Awards for her reporting. Her career blossomed from there (https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Ann\_Curry).
